

ZHENNI LI-COHEN, piano

Zhenni Li-Cohen's passionate performances and riveting presence have brought audiences to their feet around the world. Gramophone Magazine hailed her for her "torrents of voluptuous sound..." noting further that she "impresses as an artist of tremendous conviction, who fascinates even as she provokes." The New Yorker praised her as "a thrillingly good pianist" and the Philadelphia Inquirer was taken with her "...big, gorgeous tone and mesmerizing touch." Ms. Li-Cohen has performed in such notable venues as Carnegie Hall, Lincoln Center's Alice Tully Hall, Merkin Concert Hall, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, WQXR's Greene Space in New York, Philadelphia's Kimmel Performing Arts Center, the Helsinki

Music Centre in Finland, the Grieghallen in Norway, and the Berliner Philharmonie in Germany.

Her difficult early years did not portend a remarkable career. After a year of study with her childhood teacher, she was rejected for lack of talent at the ripe old age of seven years. Intuiting her passion and promise, her father took charge of her music education, learning the piano himself in the process, and she soon successfully auditioned for a new teacher. Eventually, at age eleven, she moved away from home to continue her piano studies while her parents remained behind, working to support her education. Alone in her rental apartment, she spent her free time expressing her emotions through the piano and reading books endlessly. Music was her only refuge, and her prowess soared, until at age sixteen, she emigrated to the United States and was accepted to study at the Juilliard School shortly thereafter, earning Bachelors and Masters degrees in piano performance. She spent her summers in France, leading to a great love and appreciation for French music, particularly that of Claude Debussy, whose Préludes were eventually the subject of her dissertation.

After further studies at Yale University, she pursued her Doctoral degree at McGill University in Montreal and began concertizing in earnest, releasing her critically acclaimed CD recording debut "Mélancholie" on the Steinway & Sons label and appearing in recitals at Carnegie Hall's Zankel Hall, the Berlin Philharmonie, the Smithsonian Museum in Washington, D.C., New York's Steinway Hall, Philadelphia's American Philosophical Society, and in the Morgan Library as a guest artist for the New York Philharmonic Symposium on Stravinsky with conductor Valery Gergiev. As a soloist, she appeared with the Bergen Philharmonic Orchestra in Norway, the National Symphony Orchestra of the Dominican Republic, and the Fairbanks, Knoxville, Bucks County, Johns Hopkins and Waterloo-Cedar Falls Symphony Orchestras among others. Her performances have been broadcast internationally on Canada National CBC Radio, Chicago's WFMT Public Radio, Iowa Public Radio, New York's WQXR, Norwegian National Radio: NPK P2/NPK Klassisk, Philadelphia's WWFM and WRTI, Texas Public Radio, and West Virginia's WVTF.

In addition to her solo career, she is a deeply devoted chamber musician. She has collaborated with members of the Aeolus, Borrromeo, Jasper, Hugo Wolf, and New Orford quartets and has performed at numerous chamber music festivals including Classical Bridge, Fontainebleau Festival, Kneisel Hall, Methow Valley Chamber Music Festival, Music@Menlo, and Ravinia's Steans Music Institute. Her passion for chamber music led her to co-found "The Last Soirée", a multi-genre performing arts series which launched in New York in 2018, and "Fishin' in C Chamber Music Series," a diverse chamber concert series in Philadelphia with the aim of bringing music to underserved areas.

She is immensely grateful to be able to count among her artistic influences many incredible teachers and mentors, Peter Frankl, Richard Goode, Joseph Kalichstein, Stéphane Lemelin, Seymour Lipkin, Robert McDonald, Mark Salman, and Craig Sheppard.

In her spare time, she enjoys learning new languages, looking forward to becoming pentalingual, and traveling and meeting people of different cultures. Ms. Li-Cohen now lives in Manhattan with her husband and two cats, Monkey and Mumu. Zhenni Li-Cohen is a Steinway Artist.

ZHENNI LI-COHEN, piano

“Zhenni Li’s new Steinway release is a bolt from the blue....Her beautiful sound is captured in full dimension and depth in this expertly engineered recording. Li leaves no detail of Schumann’s F sharp minor Sonata unattended. The minute scrutiny brought to every element of the score would, in other hands, fragment and shatter the piece. Yet somehow, by dint of passionate identification and sheer force of will, Li pulls it off. Her extravagant and pervasive rubato, which occasionally risks derailing everything she sets in motion, strikes nonetheless as so heartfelt and intrinsic to her emotional response to the music as to be indisputable. There are moments when you wish for more than just a few consecutive measures of steady pulse, but then Li’s torrents of voluptuous sound sweep away any reservation....Li impresses as an artist of tremendous conviction, who fascinates even as she provokes.”
–Gramophone

“...a thrillingly good pianist” –The New Yorker

“Li is an extremely expressive artist. She understands not merely the notes on the page but how they should progress, one following the other, to make coherent musical statements....she manages to ‘lead’ the ear to connect the phrasing and complete the musical structure. This is a very high level of artistry....She presents us with a sort of smoldering undercurrent that reaches deep inside the notes. It’s hard to explain; you just have to hear it....In her hands, [Schumann’s Piano Sonata No. 1] becomes almost like a fantasy in which the composer’s mind wanders through various moods and images, portrayed vividly by this gifted and imaginative artist....fascinating...an artist with a deep emotional commitment to the music she is playing.” –The Art Music Lounge

“Zhenni Li, a brilliant, sophisticated, and versatile master of piano...” –Helsingin Sanomat (Finland)

“a magnetic pianist—with fire and poetry. Everyone should hear her” —David Dubal

“Zhenni Li found the quirky harmonic sensibility and strange beauty of Schumann with natural ease, with especially incisive drawing out of inner voices.” —Broad Street Review

“Li recontextualizes [Schumann’s Piano Sonata No. 1 in F-sharp minor, Op. 11 and Bartók’s Two Elegies, Op. 8b] effectively. It’s an impressive program, both accessible and highly original.” –Allmusic

“Li is a real personality - she comes across as passionate, driven and resolute.” –Pianist Magazine
